On June 30, 2023, thirteen capital postconviction actions were pending in the trial courts for more than three years (out of a total of thirty-six cases pending in the trial courts). Four of those cases involve defendants who were declared incompetent to proceed and thus those postconviction proceedings are stayed pending competency restoration.

The first section of this report details the nine postconviction actions pending in circuit court for longer than three years as of June 30, 2023. The second section details the four cases involving defendants who are incompetent to proceed.
